

VIBRATION REDUCING DEVICE FOR ARCHERY BOWS

ABSTRACT

A dampening device for reducing torque and vibration present within an bow after casting an arrow is disclosed. In one embodiment, the dampening device includes a body portion, a substantially wedge-like extension extending from the body portion, and a planar surface connected to the body portion and configured to be secured to a bow.